Day 10

Cape Cod & The Islands

Decision day today:

- Drive back to Boston and fly home.
- Take the ferry to either Martha's Vineyard or Nantucket.
- Keep the car and make your way to New York via Rhode Island or circle back to Boston exploring Rhode Island and Connecticut on your way.

Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket are affluent islands off the coast of Massachusetts that offer a mix of natural beauty, historical charm, and upscale dining and shopping. They're both popular summer destinations which have attracted both stars and politicians to their shores, but they also have distinct personalities that appeal to different types of travellers.

If you're looking for a relaxed and bohemian getaway with plenty of natural beauty, Martha's Vineyard is the better choice. If you're looking for a more refined and sophisticated experience with a focus on shopping and high-end dining, Nantucket is probably for you.

Getting to either island is easy, you can leave your car in Hyannis and take the passenger high-speed ferry or you can put your car on the boat from Hyannis to Nantucket or Woods Hole to Martha's Vineyard.
